Telecommunication is a resource and an essential source of information for any business.

Knowing how to interpret and manage these data in real time is strategic.

Purchasing Function

With Habble it is possible to know in real time the actual volume and traffic made by each inbound and outbound call, putting the related costs in evidence. In this way, with a simple one click it is possible to control the budget, establishing the potential variance between the budgeted expense and the consumption carried out by every department in time. Moreover, there are several statistics readily available: The most expensive phone calls, Customer numbers that call more and the ones that call less, etc.: all useful parameters to understand the actual company needs and make sure that the services provided by the carriers match the actual require-

Habble is the web cloud platform that analyzes in real time all the communication exchanges from fixed phone lines, mobile and data traffic of your company, thus generating savings on the telephone expense.

Cost analysis and reduction

In this decade, telecommunication costs represent one of the top 5 expenses for businesses. Habble supports the right sizing of the telephone infrastructure, based on real usage, thus eliminating avoidable extra-costs related to telephone frauds, wrong invoices, malfunctioning, roaming. Thanks to constant monitoring, the right set-up and the cost analysis, Habble can generate a significant saving on the annual telecommunication expenses; according to our experience so far, the saving can be between 15% and 30% in the first year.
